Little Discusses Number Systems At Club Meeting

League of Nations' Plans to Change Calendar and Origin of Decimal Systems Are Explained

"These Peculiar Things Called Numbers" was the title of a talk given by Prof. E. M. Little at a meeting of the Mathematics club at Craig hall last Wednesday evening. He discussed the humorous and paradoxical inconsistencies of numbers, particularly with reference to the calendar and the decimal system.

"The calendar has a peculiar number system that is far from modern," Dr. Little brought out. "The League of Nations is working to bring about a change in the calendar. One of two best ideas for a change is to have 13 months of four weeks each, and the other advocates 12 months of 30 days each, the extra days not being counted as dates but put on as holidays. Of course, if we adopted a five- or ten-day week, the second plan would give the same calendar for each month."

"Why do we use the decimal system—based on the number 10? Why wouldn't a system based on eight be just as good? The only reason seems to be that we have ten fingers. In the tropics some tribes use a 20 system based on the fingers and toes. Systems of 12 or 30 could be used just as logically."

"Some day mathematicians may contribute a number notation as much better than our Arabic notation as our Arabic is better than the Roman notation."

Intramural Organizers Plan League

Basketball and Hockey Schedules Will Be Arranged By Director

On Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock a meeting will be held of the intramural managers selected from each fraternity and the Independents. The meeting will be held in Room 102 of the men's gymnasium and the purpose will be to decide whether or not there will be competition among these organizations in basketball and hockey. The various groups are requested to appoint their managers at once and to instruct them whether or not their organization is going to participate.

In case it is decided to include those activities on the intramural sports program a regular schedule will be drawn up, with the minor sports director in charge. There was no official league in either hockey or basketball last year but unofficial games were played and aroused considerable interest.

The intramural director would also like to know at that time how many of the fraternities are going to enter a team in the bowling league and if the Independents will be represented this year.

Newman Club Names Four New Officers

Mrs. C. H. Clapp Addresses Group At Sunday Breakfast

More than one hundred students attended the Newman club breakfast at St. Anthony's Parish hall Sunday morning. Election of officers and a talk by Mrs. C. H. Clapp comprised the program.

Mrs. Clapp discussed the organization of study clubs.

"There are two ways of organizing these clubs. You may have one large group, or you may divide into small groups of five to eight persons who are interested in the same department. For instance, a group of French majors might meet and have one of the members review a French book of current interest," she said.

Officers elected were: Grant Leiber, president; Joe Wagner, vice-president; Emma Bravo, secretary, and Archie Kimpel, treasurer.

Foods Class Inspects Local Bakery Systems

Approximately thirty-five girls in the foods 15a class took the second field trip of the year Friday morning when they made an inspection of a local bakery.

The class arrived at the bakery at 6:30 o'clock in order that they might see all the processes involved in getting out the day's supply of breads, rolls, doughnuts and other bakery products. Although only a few men are required in doing this work, by 8 o'clock the bread was baked, wrapped and ready to go out on the market. Most of the processes are handled by means of machinery and very little handwork is necessary.

Alumni Decide to Make Council Permanent Body At Initial Meeting Here

Complete Discussion of All Problems Confronting State University Takes Place Throughout Sessions; Tentative Plans for Union With Other Associations Are Made

Definite plans to perpetuate the Alumni council of the State University Alumni association were made at the first meeting of the council in the Forestry auditorium last Saturday and Sunday mornings when a committee was appointed to draw up plans for future membership and meetings of the council.

It was decided that the Alumni association would not hold a reunion in 1933 but that work this year would be centered upon the council's activities. The council plans to hold at least one meeting a year with alumni associations of the State College, the School of Mines, and the other Greater University institutions as a means of impressing upon the people of Montana the idea of an integrated Greater University. A union with these associations is also being considered.

Fees of the association were set by the council at a dollar per year for dues and a dollar per year for subscription to the Montana Alumnus, quarterly magazine of the association, or a combination of the two at $1.50 per year.

Discussion Diversified Saturday's meeting considered first the Alumni association, the activities of its clubs, the Montana Alumnus, the placement bureau and personnel service. Andrew Cogswell then discussed the State University news service with a report on the news stories sent out last year. Dean R. C. Line gave a report on student costs in 1932-33, showing that the average student expenses per year were $150.87 less than three years ago.

Following a discussion of State University activities in debate, drama, and the Frontier, Pres. C. H. Clapp explained the curriculum revision which has taken place this last year which allows a student to acquire his background of general knowledge in the lower division or first two years, and to specialize in the upper division or last two years.

The Sunday discussion opened with a report by George Shepard on the work accomplished by the Alumni Challenge Athletic Field corporation. The bleachers, the land on which the Forestry nursery is located and the golf course known as the Old Country club, were acquired for the State University through the efforts of this corporation.

Dr. Clapp Gives Report Pres. C. H. Clapp then presented a statistical report of financial conditions of the State University as compared with those of other northwestern universities, showing that on expenditures for state purposes and higher education, Montana ranks low.

It was decided that the placement service of the Alumni association should be placed upon a fee basis and that it should include all students and alumni in general rather than just those desiring positions as teachers.

B. F. Oakes, A. J. Lewandowski and Harry Adams discussed athletics with the council.

Members Present Those who were present for the meeting Saturday morning were: John Patterson, Missoula; Burtt R. Smith, Anaconda; Harry N. Stuber, Billings; Guy E. Sheridan, Butte; Miles J. Thomas, Helena; Carl McFarland, Helena; William O. Dickinson, Missoula; Mrs. Lu Knowles Maxey, Missoula; T. C. Spaulding, Missoula; William Jameson, Billings; E. K. Badgley, Missoula; Roger Fleming, Missoula, and Charles E. Avery, Anaconda. The State University administration was represented by Dean R. C. Line, Andrew C. Cogswell, Morris McCollum, Jessie Cambron Treichler, Pres. C. H. Clapp, J. B. Speer and W. E. Maddock. In addition to these, DeWitt Warren, Glendive; Maurice Dietrich, Deer Lodge, and Howard Toole, Walter McLeod, and George Shepard, Missoula, were present for the Sunday meeting.

Out-of-town members of the Alumni council were the guests Saturday afternoon of President Clapp at the Oregon State-State University game, and Saturday evening of the Missoula Alumni club at a dinner at Corbin hall.

NOTICE There will be a meeting of Home Economics club tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock in the clothing laboratory of the Natural Science building.

Old Campus Road Will Be Improved

Work on Road Beside Craig Hall Will Eliminate Curve

Removal of the curve in the road around the hedge east of Craig hall was started Saturday. Instead of cutting east of Elliott hall, the road will extend straight south from the opening in the hedge, go around the hall and then turn east to join with the trail that was formerly used.

"The road will still have some danger so far as speeders are concerned," T. G. Swearingin, who is in charge of the work, says, "but if drivers will exercise a little care in travelling on that road, the danger will be much less than was the case with the former blind curve."

The new portion of the road is being plowed and will be graded in order that water will drain from it. It will be graveled before it is finally put into use.

Harry W. Stuber and Charles E. Avery of Anaconda were week-end guests at South hall.

From the SENIOR BENCH

THE football game last Saturday was, for the most part, the best we've observed this year. Only next time, we'll take our football without rain, please. With the exception of the first few minutes of play, the last few minutes were the most exciting we've watched, outside of the movies, for some time. The cheer leaders, we regret to have noticed, were not up to their usual standard. It seems to us that it might be possible to evolve some more competitive method of selecting cheer leaders. If they were volunteers—willing freshmen, perhaps—a different trio for each game, under the direction of a yell king who earns appointment for having been an outstanding cheer leader the previous year, there might be more enthusiasm aroused in the rooting sections. We realize that it is hard work to get a crowd that is both cold and wet to scream enthusiastically for a team that is losing. But if the crowd were aware of friendly rivalry among the cheer leaders, as well as between the teams, mightn't it help? At any rate, it might keep students rooting for their own team.

HUMAN nature is a peculiar thing. It is probably blamed for more human ills than any other single item, not counting bad luck. Human nature, we were told by a learned professor, is social nature, and refers to attitudes acquired by education, rather than any innate quality of mind. However, enhancing triteness and error, we are going to lay the blame for a few things at the feet of human nature. It is human nature to take pride in your work, in your department and its achievements. But when individual rides get too strong they are apt to urdle into jealousy. And that is what seems to have happened in more than one instance—probably in many places besides the University. Departmental jealousies in a school of this size, however, seem somewhat illogical. Friendly rivalry is fine. It is useful for spurring achievement, and few people would deny it. But ordinary, small-boy, call-each-other-names jealousy is too petty for dignified departments to indulge in. We are strong for a forum course in "The Other Fellow's Viewpoint," with attendance obligatory for professors and open to students. Not only would it help everyone to a little mutual appreciation of the problems facing the other departments, but it would be such a fine opportunity for all of us to brag about our own.

WHAT do you notice about the people you meet? We always notice the color of their eyes, and the quality of their look. By the word quality we mean what a modern poet might express by the phrase, the "essence of their gaze." In other words, we remember if the individual looked at us easily, or nervously, or anxiously, or any other way adversely describable. We recall learning, when we first came to college, that many people never notice eyes. It surprised us, and we started asking other people that they did notice. One friend of ours looks at hands, and mentally identifies people by their hands. Another recalls nothing but the shoes they wear. Still another notices hair, as color and how it is worn. Somebody else mentally estimates the length of eye-lashes (!), and another somebody can describe the style of one worn by the stranger. One young lady recalls how well or how badly the other girl applies her make-up. The endless variety of nature is sometimes surprising, to say the least.

JOHN B. CURTIS.....EDITOR

RICHARD SCHNEIDER.....BUSINESS MANAGER

Declaring that football at all large universities is "a business proposition," the Minnesota Daily, student paper at the University of Minnesota, asks editorially, "Why not pay the deserving workers?" The Daily contends that football is paying publicity and is obtained from the gridiron by "only a mere handful from each college," and the rest of the men have been "marking time as far as preparations for the future are concerned." The editorial asserts: Coaches are shifted as soon as a team has a losing streak and everything is done to keep the team winning and maintaining gate receipts. This is good business practice. The most important cog in the money-making machine is the player and his only return is "that tired, aching feeling" and a lot of slush about "fighting for the dear old Alma Mater."

This stand, taken by a large college paper, is similar to the opinions of many students and football fans throughout the country, yet the common belief is that professionalism would ruin the whole status of college athletics. It is true that "this handful of men" is giving the school and the student body "something paying" without remuneration. Many athletes are forced to work from two to four hours a day to earn their board, room and tuition. They spend three hours of hard work a day on the football field. Their classes and studies are then of secondary importance. If they lose their job, then school days are over, and college shuns the man who has a reputation for being a football player and refuses to play.

Many of the larger schools have found a solution to this problem. They maintain a training table for each sport during its season. The men on the squad receive board and room during the season they are members of a major athletic team. The quarters they are not on a major sport squad, they leave the training table. They then have sufficient time to work for their living, if necessary, and to devote enough time to their studies. The financing of a training table usually comes from the athletic fund, but in some cases it is the endowment of an alumnus or philanthropist.

This may not be the solution but it would give the players something more than "glory" and it would in no way turn college athletics professional.

We have often wondered why some professors seem to think that the intelligence quotient of their students is so far below their own that they consider it a waste of time to attempt to get in contact with them outside the classroom. We feel that both students and professors are missing something which each could get from the other. There are many students on this campus whose intelligence on subjects other than those which they happen to be taking from their professors would probably surprise those gentlemen. Last year we took a course from a certain man just because we knew he was an interesting lecturer. This year we are planning on taking another course from him because we so enjoyed the last one. But, will we walk into his classroom with any greater feeling of friendliness for the man than we did last year? We will not! We have so far failed in getting to know the man that he doesn't even speak to us when we meet on the campus. Still, we know he has a fund of interesting things to tell those who manage to get to know him.

Ranked against these professors who seem not to care about what becomes of the students once they have left the lecture room, are those who take the greatest interest in everything that happens to those whom they teach. The men are easy to get acquainted with. They take a keen delight in discovering a student who is able to argue intelligently on a number of subjects. These are the men who make the school what it is. The students may enjoy the stand-offish professors' classes, but when it comes to taking their troubles to some one who will understand and advise them, they turn to those men who have permitted a certain degree of friendliness to enter into their relationship.

Do you keep a budget? If you do, have you figured out how much cigarettes cost you for the period of one year? A recent survey made by the School of Business Administration discloses the fact that three of the students questioned spend over fifty dollars a year on one brand or another of smokes. We used to have a favorite brand but they have given place to various and sundry other cigarettes until now we find ourselves smoking practically any brand. However, we have not been able to bring ourselves to smoking a certain kind the producers brag are not advertised and therefore can be sold much cheaper than other cigarettes. A decided tendency is being evidenced this year in the manner in which students are cutting expenses and the reduction is noticeable in many smoking accounts. Many find it cheaper to smoke a pipe, others have abandoned the habit altogether and some indulge in "O. P.'s" (Other Peoples').

After a long battle we were able to cut out cigarette smoking. Two days after the campaign had ended, a salesman visited the campus and donated packages of his company's product promiscuously about—we gently came to the realization that we were again among the great army of those who are blatantly classed in the advertising sections as the discriminating cigarette smoker.

The old adage that all roads lead to Rome may be true enough, but the University seems to be having a hard time trying to decide just where Rome is, by the way the big "Cat" goes around the campus making new roads.

When the present college group goes into the business world, co-operative business should flourish, at least if the co-operative studying that is done in college today is any indication.

One way of being assured an audience for a University gathering is to get out the R. O. T. C.

Lights twinkling brightly across the campus... through the trees... into the darkened windows of deserted classrooms, where eager feet moving all day long have ceased their staccato, rhythmic song... until another day.

Lights twinkling brightly across the campus... laughter tinkling back in trills echoed from the guardian hills Sentinel and Jumbo... until a later hour when the clock in the tower halts it all, dimming the light... until another night.

Lights twinkling brightly across the campus... stormy nights and starry nights hectic nights and pleasant nights the lights shine on... some have gone others flow in to fill the niche left vacant... until another year.

Lights twinkling brightly across the campus... I clutch with aging fingers the memory of other nights when lights were bright and starry skies reposed in someone's eyes... we strolled together laughing gayly across the campus...

Lights twinkling brightly across the campus... have brightened my nights many times... and lightened the next day's worry... and as I scurry home in dreams, it seems she walks again with me a sea of lights smoldering in her eyes our laughter rising to the skies.

Lights twinkling brightly across the campus... may I see them years from now.

Freshman Women Beat Sophomores In Hockey Tourney

Second Tournament Game Will Be Played Tomorrow Between Fresh and Juniors

By a score of two-to-one the freshman hockey team defeated the sophomore team in the first game of the inter-class hockey tournament which was started yesterday afternoon.

Tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock, the freshman will meet the junior team for the second tournament game. A contest between the sophomores and the juniors on Friday afternoon will bring the tournament to a close.

The Women's Athletic association is sponsoring a series of teas during the tournament. Tea is served each day following the game by members of the team not playing that day. Yesterday the tea was served by the junior women. The sophomores will serve tomorrow and the freshmen will act as hostesses on Friday.

Winners of the tournament will be awarded either a cup or a plaque, which will be theirs to keep permanently.

Wanderlust

Life is just a bowl of cherries! That seems to be the sentiment expressed by Ernest Allen, former student, in a letter to a friend who is attending school here now.

Allen says, "A week ago I was digging ditches in Yellowstone park in a foot of snow. To make things worse the thermometer was hovering around zero. Now I have a job for the next two weeks picking cotton in South Carolina. It's a great life!"

Allen plans to bum his way to Europe, preferably Germany.

Oregon State Outplays Grizzlies To Win First Conference Victory

Initial Kick-off and Final Minutes of Play Thrill Rain-Soaked Crowd; Pass Results in Lone Grizzly Score

Oregon State won its first conference victory of the season Saturday by outplaying an unlucky Montana team and winning, 35 to 6. Two heavy lines battled evenly through the mud and rain but the Montana backfield, with its stars on the bench nursing injuries, could not compete successfully against the string of shift backs which the Beavers sent into the fray.

Stansberry brought the Montana fans to their feet with a 70-yard return of the opening kick-off and, a few minutes later, shot a pass to Vidro for a touchdown and a six-point lead for Montana. The Grizzlies might have maintained this lead with a little luck, but a badly-bouncing punt put them in a hole and paved the way for Oregon State's first score shortly after the next kick-off.

Beavers Lose Yardage The Grizzly line smashed through the mud and again to break up plays and slow Beaver backs for losses. During the first half, the Montana forward wall stopped Oregon State's running plays, forcing them to resort to passing attack which twice caught the Grizzly backs asleep and produced touchdowns.

At the end of the first quarter the score was Montana 6, Oregon State 15. Heikenen and Moe had carried the ball over the Grizzly line on passes from sharp-shooting Davis, and the Beavers scored a safety when the ball popped from Stansberry's grasp when attempted to punt from behind his own goal line. The rest of the period was a punting duel between Emery and Davis.

Second Period Scoreless The second period was scoreless, both teams being forced to punt often because of inability to plow through mud for consistent gains. The Beavers opened up with a passing attack in a desperate attempt to score the final minutes of the half, but the ball on three incompletes ended just as the gun sounded. Shortly after the third quarter started, the Beavers started a march in the field but were stopped by Grizzlies, but a penalty gave them ball on the 30-yard line. On the second play, Moe took a 27-yard pass in Davis and went over the line ending up. The conversion failed and the score was Montana 6, Oregon State 21.

Montana's defense tightened and the Beavers were unable to gain, punting frequently, keeping Montana deep in own territory. Near the end of period the fast-stepping Ward, less of the mud that made footing hazardous, splashed around end for yards before he was dragged down Montana's one-yard line. The Grizzlies fought hard and stopped two line rushes but on the third try, Little squeezed over for the score. Acheson kicked goal. Montana 6, Oregon State 27. Caven returned the kickoff 52 yards as the quarter ended.

The fourth period opened as a punting duel with neither team having the advantage. Both sides punted on second or third downs and penalties ended several potential rallies. Then McIntosh and Acheson started a 56-yard drive which ended when McIntosh dove the last two yards for the six points. Acheson kicked goal. Caven Returns Kick-off Caven twisted and dodged 57 yards

Sporty Vents

The Montana State College Bobcats, with victories over the Grizzlies, Miners and Carroll college, have been crowned state intercollegiate football champions, dethroning the Saints who held the title last year.

When Montana plays U. C. L. A. Saturday there is little chance of an upset spoiling perfect records of either team. The Bruins have won all of their conference games while the Grizzlies have yet to enter the win column.

When St. Marys beat U. C. L. A. Armistice Day they spoiled the Bruins' chance of going through the season undefeated, but they did not lower them in the conference standings. They are still tied with U. S. C. for the conference leadership.

Several conference and sectional titles were practically decided Saturday when another batch of undefeated teams hit the skids. Other leaders won from teams which were conceded a chance to knock them off and scramble the races down the home stretch.

Southern California kept her record intact by handing the Oregon Webfooters a 33 to 0 drubbing. Utah continued the march for her seventh straight championship in the Rocky Mountain loop by winning from Denver 27 to 0 in a game that was expected to be one of the closest struggles of the day.

Pittsburgh, still in the running for eastern honors, eliminated herself from national consideration by battling to a scoreless tie with Nebraska. Colgate downed Syracuse, 16 to 0, and kept her slate clean. Brown barely held her head above water, nosing out the Columbia Lions, 7 to 6.

Brown is making a game fight. Last week they rallied in the closing minutes of the game with Holy Cross to pull a 10 to 7 victory out of the

Grizzly Band Has Complete Uniforms

Since the arrival of 50 pair of trousers last week, the Grizzly band can wear complete dress uniforms. Formerly the members were required to wear white trousers with the maroon and gold coats, capes and caps of the regular uniform.

Each member of the band is allowed $10 a year for uniforms by the Department of Military Science. This year it has been possible to complete the uniforms and to buy about twelve new ones which make a total of 50 complete uniforms.

fire. But they still have the Red Raiders from Colgate to dispose of.

Auburn now holds undisputed lead in the Southern conference. They went there hunting Saturday and returned with the hide of the Florida 'Gators following a 21 to 6 victory.

The title hopes of the Tennessee Volunteers were given a severe setback by Vanderbilt Saturday when the two teams fought to a 0 to 0 tie. Centenary, a non-conference team, took the edge off the claims of Louisiana State for southern leadership.

Michigan remains at the top of the Big Ten heap. Comparative scores indicate that other mid-western teams are better than the Wolverines but none of them seem able to knock her off her perch in actual competition.

Unless Freshman Coach Lewandowski can arrange another game for his huskies, football at Montana is over for the season. The Varsity leaves tomorrow for Los Angeles and will return just in time to hop a train for Spokane to play Gonzaga, but there will be no more Varsity games this year on Dornblaser field.

Basketball season will soon be here and the intermural managers are planning schedules which will provide plenty of basketball for everybody.

Varsity and freshman players cannot begin practice until the autumn quarter is over. But many of them are hanging around the gym limbering up and getting used to the feel of the ball.

Battle Royal

Co-ed Football Teams Fight In Spectacular Fashion But Fail to Score

Between halves of the Grizzly-Oregon State game Saturday afternoon, spectators were given a real thrill when two teams composed of State University co-eds battled to a scoreless tie after 15 minutes of hard-fought play on a muddy, slippery field.

Undaunted by inclement weather, both teams ran, punted, kicked and passed the ball to the one-yard stripe, but lacked the necessary punch to score a touchdown. The outstanding play was a 40-yard run by Laura Martin of the Red Jerseys on a wide end run which brought the ball down to the 10-yard line. A series of line plunges failed to make any gain, the ball going to the White Jerseys on their own 10-yard line. Helen Mercer, fullback and captain of the White Jerseys, received the ball on the next play and booted it 30 yards where it was received by the Red Jerseys on the 40-yard line. A succession of line plunges failed to make any yardage, and the game ended with the ball on the 50-yard line, neither team having the advantage when the final gun sounded.

Despite the fact that the players were of the female sex, they possessed all the instincts of Grizzly fight. Team Coaches Harry Adams, A. J. Lewandowski, Rodney McCall and Bill Hawke issued no statements in regard to the outcome of the game.

THE young man is saying the reason he smokes Chesterfields is because they satisfy.

The young lady agrees with him. She says: "They click with me, too. I'm not what you'd call a heavy smoker. But even I can tell that they're milder. Besides, I always

Whittinghill Pays Election Wagers To Co-Students

Rolls Peanut Down Football Field; Rides Jones Over Bus Route In Wheelbarrow

Here is one time that an election bet was paid in full on the date set for payment.

Robert Schell, after seeing that Noral Whittinghill was really going to carry out the wager to roll a peanut with his nose down the full length of the football field at the Montana-Oregon State game, felt sorry for him and called off the bet after Whittinghill had reached the first 20-yard line. The girls' football game somewhat hindered Whittinghill because all the line plunges seemed to be run his way.

The wager with Jimmie Jones was different. At exactly 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon, a wheelbarrow was taken down to the Northern Pacific depot, and Jones, decorated with a big cigar in his mouth and a parasol over his head, started the ride up Higgins avenue with Whittinghill pushing. Before long amused onlookers had gathered on the sidewalks to see what it was all about.

After the first two blocks, Whittinghill began to realize that pushing the 185-pound Jones was not such an easy job. But with the idea that Hoover might reward him, he pushed valiantly on. All the way up Higgins avenue, up Gerald and down University avenue, the procession moved on despite the threatening weather and the more threatening muscle strain in Whittinghill's arms.

Finally, with aching arms and that "tired feeling," Whittinghill reached his destination, and another election bet had been paid.

Masquer Play Gives Vivid Portrayal of Hypothetical World of the Future

What might happen if, in some future state of civilization, the work of the world is done by Robots, living machines, stronger and more intelligent than human beings? This is a question Karel Capek asked himself, and his answer is embodied in the melodrama, "R. U. R.," which the Montana Masquers will present Thursday and Friday, November 24 and 25.

This play takes place on an island on which are located the factories for the manufacture of robots. They are being turned out at a tremendous rate to replace human workers throughout the world.

"What happens when the robots revolt against their human master, and set out to conquer the world for which they labor, makes, in the hands of a master playwright like Capek, one of the most gripping of modern dramas," said Barnard Hewitt, director of the production. "The novelty of Capek's idea and his unusual treatment of it brought 'R. U. R.' an enthusiastic reception from both critics and public when the New York Theater Guild gave its first production in this country."

Science Department Will Exhibit Films

P. T. A. Members, Druggists, Dentists, To Be Invited

"Two reels of films entitled 'Nutrition and Dental Health' will be shown to all students of science at the State University early in January, through the courtesy of the Castle Films' corporation of New York City," Dean Charles E. Mollett of the School of Pharmacy, announced last week. "Local druggists, dentists and members of the Parent Teachers' association also will be invited to see the films which will be shown in the lecture room of the Forestry building," said Dean Mollett.

The films will show some of the more common diseases of the teeth and gums. These will be illustrated by charts and diagrams as well as actual pictures. Suggested foods and preparations for the prevention and cure of the diseases also will be given. Results of research for the protection of teeth and gums in the diets of children, as well as adults, will be stressed.

"The films will contain no advertising whatever," Dean Mollett stated. "The Castle Films' corporation is the same company which showed us the films last year on 'The Relation of Nutrition to Dental Health.'"

Two Home Economics Co-eds Darn Team's Football Suits

Playing football may be great sport for men, but to two women in the Department of Home Economics, it is a destructive game. Twenty suits, badly torn and in sad need of some patches and mending, were brought to these co-eds with the request that they be "fixed up." Due to the rough maneuvers of some of the Grizzly football heroes, the suits showed snags, marks made by cleats, and the usual number of small holes from friction with gravel and small pebbles. Eight hours were required to complete the work on the suits and make them suitable for use the remainder of the season.

In comparison with the type of darning done by the average co-ed, the darning of football suits was by no means a small job. But, nevertheless, it was practical training, and the women enjoyed it.

Must We Go On?

Only 17 days until Hi-Jinx.

The campus "Joey Brown," Don Marrs, we hear, is to be drunk the night of the show. A very fine time he has, which annoys the Master of Ceremonies.

There are stockings and socks, net ones, lace, sheer, transparent and all-wool. All are lovely to look upon, entrancing, alluring except when soiled. One's dirty socks are very fine in the clothes hamper—but when exposed to view—tsk, tsk.

Which brings us to the question of the extra dime, December 2. Don't forget it.

We don't know what you think but we think the five women chosen for the popularity contest compose a representative group of the campus co-eds and we want to compliment the men on having selected them.

Dude Warden and Paulie Keith will emote very convincingly the night of December 2.

It is rumored that their love scenes will rival those of Garbo and Barrymore.

The big ticket selling campaign opens Thursday, folks, and we want to urge you to get your ballot and be among the first to cast your vote for Miss University of Montana.

Swimming Meets Will Be Held Soon

Intersorority and Interclass Teams Will Compete in December

Residence hall and intersorority boards met with the executive committee of the Women's Athletic Association Wednesday afternoon at the women's gymnasium.

Plans for an intersorority swimming meet were discussed. The meet will be held on December 8, and the names of the team members are to be turned in to Louise Geyer, swimming manager, as soon as possible. No girl will be permitted to enter more than four events. Points will be given for places in this tournament.

During the winter quarter there is to be an intersorority basketball tournament. A tennis tournament will be held during the spring quarter. Points will be awarded in these contests also. The sorority which has the greatest number of points in all divisions will be awarded a plaque, which will go into their permanent possession.

Next Thursday the team members for the interclass swimming tournament will be chosen. They are to report at 4:30 o'clock at the swimming pool on Tuesday for final try-outs. This tournament will be held on December 6.

ADDRESSES COLLOQUIUM

"Nature in the Raw" is seldom MILD

THE SEA WOLF

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by the noted artist, N. C. Wyeth... inspired by the infamous Captain Kidd's fierce raids on the gold-laden Spanish galleons (1696), which made him the scourge of the Spanish Main. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted" That package of mild Luckies
